TA supports

Best advice:

- It's NOT that you're a "bad" TA/grader... TAships and grading are challenging!
- Keep track of your hours, be in touch with the course instructor when nearing end of hours
- Also keep track of hours spent on TA-related activities when there are concerns

Supports:

- Workshops through OpenEd: Graduate Student Teaching Community - TA Scrapes and Band-Aids
- FRAN TA (Virtual) Support Circle – once per month, Thursday 1:30-2:30

Issues:

- Discuss with instructor, other TAs, program rep
- Contact Grad Coordinator: Scott Maitland (and/or Shauna Porter), John Beaton may also be looped in
- Contact Union: CUPE 3913 - questions@cupe3913.on.ca / (519) 265-1994

student resources at the library

The Library is the main hub for academic supports on campus. The best way to find all of the content/support that we offer is through the main website: <https://www.lib.uoguelph.ca/>

Learning Services:

Learning services offers support to students and staff on time management, goal-setting, perfectionism and procrastination, presentations and oral communication, posters, reading and note-taking, studying and test-taking, and all thing learning related.

They offer one-to-one confidential appointments for students (1st year undergrad through to PhD and post-doc) and staff bookable here: <https://www.lib.uoguelph.ca/writing-studying/studying-resources-workshops>

On that webpage, students can also find helpful resources and workshops.

Writing Services:

Writing Services offers support to students in all aspects of their writing, from clarity and cohesion, to grammar and sentence structure. They do NOT edit papers, rather work with students on how to improve their own skills.

They offer one-to-one confidential appointments for students (1st year undergrad through to PhD and post-doc) and staff bookable here: <https://www.lib.uoguelph.ca/writing-studying/writing-resources-workshops>

On that webpage, students can also find helpful resources and workshops.

Note: Both Learning Services and Writing Services have 'Peer Helpers': Peer Helpers are undergrad students who are hired, trained, and supervised by staff. They also offer appointments to students (the same as staff do) but offer a much more related experience.

Thanks to Victoria Fritz, RSW, MSc, FRHD PhD Candidate, UoG Learning Specialist for putting together this summary!

English as an Additional Language (EAL) Support:

The Library offers support to students who have English as an additional language through one-on-one confidential consultations as well as workshops and resources.

You can find more information about EAL supports for students (and book appointments) here: <https://www.lib.uoguelph.ca/writing-studying/english-language-support>

Research Support:

The Library has many wonderful Librarians and Library Associates who are able to support students in their research: from finding sources, figuring out what peer-reviewed means, searching databases, etc. They offer one-to-one confidential consultations for students and staff, bookable here: <https://www.lib.uoguelph.ca/writing-studying/research-assistance>

Data Support:

The Library has phenomenal staff to help support students, staff, and faculty with data and data analysis. They offer support in finding data, managing data, using different software for analysis, and data visualization. They offer workshops and one-to-one confidential consultations.

You can find more on support with data and some resources here: <https://www.lib.uoguelph.ca/working-data/data-analysis> (under the “working with data” tab on the home page of the Library).

Library Guides:

Library Guides (or Lib Guides) are short how-to guides that provide information on a wide-variety of content and skills related to the academic journey. The guides are all created and maintained by staff members and Librarians. Lib Guides exist for all undergrad courses (and include things like which databases are most helpful and other tips for success). There are also topic guides on a huge variety of things, like citations and studying and copyright. LibGuides are searchable! They can all be found here: <https://guides.lib.uoguelph.ca/>

Digital Learning Commons:

The Digital Learning Commons is an online hub of resources for students. There is a huge variety of resources for students, on all types of content (and links to some of our other content like LibGuides). All of the content is free for students to access and to use. It is also searchable, so students can find what they are looking for. You can find the Digital Learning Commons here: <https://learningcommons.lib.uoguelph.ca/>

UoG grad student peer supports

Student Support Network: A campus drop-in and support line that provides confidential support, information, and referrals to students by trained volunteers.

- Location: Raithby House
- Contact: 519-824-4120 ext. 55002 or visit: <http://www.uoguelph.ca/counselling/student-support-network> graduate student teaching community

"Our programming is designed for graduate students who are interested in teaching and learning and who are looking to further develop and improve their teaching practice. Through all of our graduate programming, there are many opportunities to learn new skills and techniques, gather and share knowledge, and network with like-minded individuals. This programming is lead by the Office of Teaching and Learning's Graduate Programming Team, which is made up of an Educational Developer, a Senior Graduate Educational Developer and three Graduate Educational Developers.

We offer a wide range of programming. Our two major programming efforts are the University Teaching Foundations \(Foundations\) program and our annual Graduate Student University Teaching Day\(s\) \(GSUTD\). Foundations is a free teaching development program for graduate students at the University of Guelph. The completion of the Foundations programs includes workshops, Scholarship of Teaching and Learning journal clubs, networking events, and reflective writing." <https://otl.uoguelph.ca/graduate-student-programming-overview>
